

MR. GOMPERS TESTIFIES.

HE PRESENTS HIS VIEWS TO THE NATIONAL LABOR COMMISSION.

WHY THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR REFUSED TO STRIKE—COMPULSORY ARBITRATION CONDEMNED.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—President Debs, of the American Railway Union, was recalled at the beginning of today's session of the National Labor Commission. He produced a letter substantiating his statement that the now famous expression, "Save your money and buy a gun," was not his, but that of his stenographer, L. P. Benedict, and was used by the latter only in a spirit of badinage. The letter declares that the expression was a common one in the office at Butte, Mont., from which Mr. Benedict came.

Mr. Debs was then asked: "Do you believe it justifiable to tie up the commerce of the country in order to obtain redress for a comparatively small body of men?"

He replied: "That depends. For a small grievance, I do not think it would be justifiable; for one affecting a large number of men, I think it would be."

"Do you think a railroad company would be justifiable in tying up commerce in order to retain a demand made on one road?"

"Well, that is the way the general managers do the thing."

Commissioner Wright then read Mr. Debs's communication which suggests that labor and capital each be required to file a bond, to be forfeited in case of a refusal to submit any question to arbitration. The witness did not like the plan. He said he was opposed to anything like compulsory arbitration. President Debs said he had no personal knowledge of a blacklist.

He then devoted his attention to denying statements made by General Manager St. John, first of the A. R. U., on the Rock Island system.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, next took the stand. He said the membership of the order was 550,000. Mr. Gompers told in detail about the meeting at the Briggs House, at which action was taken on the A. R. U. strike.

"I decided at this meeting," said Mr. Gompers, "that, since the Prime Minister of England had deemed it expedient to use the great power of England to end the coal strike, it would not be beneath the dignity of the President of the United States to take some action in this unhappy crisis. To this end we telegraphed him, asking him either to come to Chicago or send a representative. To this telegram the President did not reply. The American Federation of Labor deemed it inexpedient at this time to recommend a strike."

Mr. Gompers read an address to the public explaining why the organization of which he is president refused to order a strike. He referred to the town of Pullman as "Pullman's Phalarisical paradise."

"It would be a very difficult thing for the American Federation of Labor to declare a strike," continued Mr. Gompers. "It would only do it in some matter of general interest, such, for instance, as the establishment of an eight-hour day."

When asked whether he thought a strike justifiable at any time, Mr. Gompers said: "I believe that labor has the right at all times to better its condition. If commerce or industry is incidentally paralyzed it is not the fault of labor, but its just or reasonable demand."

When asked how he would solve labor problems Mr. Gompers said: "So long as the present conditions exist there will be strikes. I do not join in this general denunciation of strikes. I regard the strike as the right of labor against a wrong in slavery. But for the strike, labor would never have been given a second thought. It is not the fault of labor, but its just or reasonable demand."

DISORDER AT A BICYCLE MEET.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED AT ALBANY BY A FALLING STAND—AN ATTACK MADE UPON THE CLUBHOUSE.

Albany, Aug. 25.—Three thousand people this afternoon saw the annual race meet of the Albany Bicycle Club. After the fifth race the "contest" was interrupted by a terrific thunder shower, which came up suddenly. The crowds scattered to every available place of shelter on the grounds.

The judges' stand, under which was a number of people and on which stood thirty men, gave way with a crash and added to the excitement. George Fish was badly crushed and probably internally injured. He was taken to the hospital. A boy named Sweeney was cut across the abdomen.

The crowd then sought admission to the clubhouse, which was refused. As a result the windows and doors of the clubhouse were smashed, and a rough-and-tumble fight followed. Three women in the crowd had their dresses crushed. Before the crowd had quieted the storm ceased.

TARRASCH'S FINE PLAY.

DETAILS OF THE FIFTH GAME OF THE CHESS MATCH AT NUREMBERG.

WALBRODT AN EASY VICTIM—HIS LACK OF JUDGMENT—SOME BRILLIANT MOVES OF THE WINNER.

The fifth game of the chess match between Dr. S. Tarrasch and C. A. Walbrodt, the score of which contest is appended, again demonstrates the superiority of the former. Walbrodt, as may be expected, from so young a player, lacks in judgment, and he therefore fell an easy prey to his clever antagonist. Tarrasch, it may be added, gave a clever and brilliant exhibition as one may expect to see over the board, and his conception of some great combinations is worthy of this great master. The game:
